

Cape customers have their day on the golf course

Following successful regional golf days in the Central Region and KwaZulu-Natal, the event for the Cape Town Region was hosted at the Boschenmeer Country Club in Paarl.

John Collins, Regional Manager for the Cape, arrived at the venue sporting a particular concern for his allocated 24 handicap, only being a part time golfer. This however was merely a minor hurdle as he proved to possess significant golfing skills as part of his hidden talents.

As in the previous two regional events, the competition format played on the day was a Betterball Stableford. The pairings ranged from single figure handicaps to high double figures, which lent for teamwork in order to prove their worth in an attempt to secure one of the top 12 position prize categories.

The two tee start provided a fluid flow of the ten four-balls resulting in a close just before sunset.

Warren Abery, professional golfer and Bell Equipment's brand ambassador added his flair on the day with a touch of class and skill, before having to catch the first flight out in the morning to George to play in a Sunshine Tour sanctioned event at Fancourt, as part of the Vodacom Origins of Golf Tournament.

SARU and International Rugby Referee, Marius Jonker, who is also Bell Equipment's Security Manager, was an affable Master of Ceremonies and presented the prize giving in conjunction with Warren Abery. There was much banter after the prize giving, when some passionate Western Province rugby supporters fired questions at Marius about the level of refereeing in South African Rugby, all which were taken in his stride and answered with pure professionalism.

Even with the numerous attempts to host the Cape Golf Day and the various changes in schedules of our customers, a well enjoyed and eventful day was had by all. The involvement by sales staff, Fiona Johnson and Clifton Roberts, from the Cape Team added to the personalised touch appreciated by all the customers present.

Owing to the success of these events, another round of regional golf days are currently being planned for 2013, so customers can look forward to more fun and networking.
